Unequaled anywhere else in the world in navigational importance are the famous locks at Sault Ste. Marie.

Through these tremendous shipping facilities... routing huge lake freighters and passenger ships around the 22-foot fall of the St. Mary's river rapids... pass more cargo tonnage in an eight-month Great Lakes navigation season than either the Panama or Suez canals handle in a full year... and more than twice the tonnage passing through the Panama canal alone.

The locks serve an average of 80 vessels a day... 70 of them freighters. Illustrative of their importance, a modern lake freighter carries about 15,000 tons of cargo... equal to 300 railway carloads. And some of the newer boats on the lakes are designed to carry 18,000 tons or more.

Opening of the billion-dollar St. Lawrence Seaway in 1959 put Michigan's 40 lake ports on one of the main routes of world trade.

Our principal maritime state on the nation's north Fourth Seacoast, boasting more million-ton ports than any other state.

Among our maritime advantages are our natural harbors, our long coastline and our favored location in America's industrial heartland.

Now, with the Seaway, 80 percent of the world's merchant fleet can reach our harbors at Detroit, Port Huron, Muskegon, Bay City, Escanaba and other port towns along our 8,121-mile Great Lakes shoreline.

Detroit and Muskegon rank as our principal world trade ports, but others... like Escanaba, Marquette, Port Huron, Bay City, Saginaw, Monroe, South Haven... are ports of call for foreign flag vessels.

Detroit ranks among the top three ports in the country in value of products shipped, and is the nation's leading port for trade with Canada.

Foreign trade registered through the Michigan Customs District, we are usually topped only by the Port of New York (occasionally by both New York and New Orleans). The Customs District office in Detroit reported the 1957 value of our foreign trade was more than $2 billion.

The Rush-Bagot agreement of 1817 between the United States and Great Britain... applicable to Michigan waters... limits the employment of warships on the Great Lakes by the U. S. and Canada.

That restriction, however, didn't prevent Michigan's Great Lakes shipyards from winning fame as leading producers of navy vessels for both the United States and Britain during World War II.

Among our major wartime makers-of-combat ships were the Defoe Shipbuilding Company at Bay City and the Great Lakes Engineering Works at River Rouge—both still active in turning out giant ore carriers and other vessels for peacetime commerce.

For its output of 150 ships of war during World War II, the Defoe Company, organized in 1905, was recognized as the Great Lakes region's largest producers of fighting craft.

In 1937 the same company began destroyers for the Navy. The first destroyers to the Navy. The first of these new type destroyers, the 436-foot USS Harry B. Wilson, largest American warship built up to that time at a Great Lakes shipyard, was launched April 22, 1939. Three more like it are to join the fleet by 1961.

Assembly of these 4,500-ton combat vessels, equipped to fire Tartar anti-aircraft missiles and armed with the latest of anti-submarine weapons, became possible at a Michigan shipyard—when the St. Lawrence Seaway opened. Without the deep-draft waterway from the Great Lakes to the sea, the big destroyers could not have reached the Atlantic.

Never has the world been so militantly excited over a single event in the advance of aviation as it was in May, 1927, when a son of Michigan made the first nonstop solo flight from New York to Paris.

Be Let Alone . . .

"A common fallacy about man's duty to man was stated recently by a prominent layman at a religious conference," says The Saturday Evening Post editorial. "As an expression of our social responsibilities he suggested, 'We are our brothers' keepers'."

This point of view, the Post went on, is due to a serious misinterpretation of the Scriptural passage in question. It then said: "If all the world's people were our brothers, and we were our brothers' keepers, they would also be our keepers. We would be among the first to be kept. In the slave societies of the totalitarianism, from the Baltic Sea to the sad coasts of Siberia and China, everybody is required to be his brothers' keeper — to maintain a sharp watch on him and to blow the whistle minute he deviates from total obedience . . .

"Well-meaning people who tell us that our duty is to be our brothers' keepers . . . have failed to draw distinctions between proper help and perpetual meddling. We have a duty to help the sick, the incapacitated, the very weak. But what our neighbors in general need is a large amount of being let alone."

The fact is that human history has largely consisted of the endless struggle of people's seeking "a large amount of being let alone." And that often-violent struggle has generally been directed at systems of government which treat the individual as a number whose duty is to do what he is told and not ask questions. The basic of all freedoms is the privilege of being let alone.

Government's Function . . .

We live in an era in which, apparently, vast numbers of people regard the government as the proper source of almost every kind of handout, grant, and so-called "benefits."

So something that Henry Hazlitt has to say in a week about government is important. In his words: "Its true function is to maintain peace, order, justice; to protect life and property; to refrain from dense and inequitable taxation; to remove the punitive laws and deterrents that previous governments have imposed. Its function is to permit and preserve a sound currency. When it fails to do this, it must bear sole responsibility for the failure."

Once government breaks its historic bonds and goes beyond these functions, the result is always the same: Oppressive taxation, a degraded currency, diminished incentive, and a steady whittling away of the freedoms of all citizens.

Grayling Fish Hatchery is minus a garage, but the new hatchery building still stands. Fire broke out in the garage building Monday afternoon and it, together with its contents, were entirely consumed. It is the opinion of Fire Chief Oliver Cody that the conflagration started from a stove. In the building was a quantity of tools and cement. Everything was destroyed. Prompt response by Grayling fire department to a call for help by Superintendent Hans L. Peterson saved the fine new hatchery building from burning. The burning garage was only a few feet away from the new hatchery. It is estimated that the loss will amount to about $480.

Mrs. Maude M. Hanson is announcing the opening of the Maureen Shoppe which will be located in the Kraus building. The opening is set for Thursday, March 18, and a tea and Easter parade will be held at Shoppensons Inn from four to five o'clock that afternoon to which the public is cordially invited.

The new gymnasium held huge crowds every night, all followers of the various teams who were participating. Grayling of course was well represented. Grayling's Invitational Basketball tournament for independent teams will be held March 18-20. There will be two cash prizes awarded; the major prize of $25 will go to the winner, while $10 will go to the consolation winner.

West Branch — GRAYLING — Gaylord

March 12, 1937

Note those broad smiles, those high steps and those happy looks on the faces of Dolph SanCartier and Walter Woods. Well, it's all on account of those baby boys that came to their homes on Sunday last.

Forty-two neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stillwell Monday evening and gave them a jolly surprise in honor of their seventeenth wedding anniversary.

Seth Chappel is the new express delivery man, having resigned his position at the Slade meat market.

Mr. Joseph arrived home from Detroit and New York on Tuesday morning after spending a couple of weeks purchasing summer goods for the Grayling Mercantile Company store.

Miss Johanna Hendrickson resigned her position at the Post Office on Saturday after five years of steady work. She is succeeded by Miss Nellie Hoyt of Gaylord, who is well-known here, having taught in our schools and having also assisted Mr. Bates in the Post Office some years ago. She will also assist the new postmaster, John F. Hum.

Miss Ethel Tromble entertained the Literary Society on Tuesday of this week. Town topics was the subject under consideration.

Mrs. Ben Kraus and Mrs. Gauss, sisters of Mrs. W. E. Havens, who with the latter's daughter Miss Ruth, have been visiting at the Havens home, coming here on account of the serious illness of Miss Agnes Havens, have all returned to their respective homes in Ellenton, Wis., and Duluth, Minn. They leave Miss Agnes improving very nicely at Mercy Hospital where she underwent an operation recently.

J. K. Bates arrived home from New York state on Saturday last, and smilingly announced to some of his friends that while he didn't bring his wife back with him, that he had one just the same. The lady was formerly Mrs. Harriett Benton of Caughdeny, N. Y., and her acquaintance with Mr. Bates has lasted over a period of forty-five years. She has a pleasant home at that place where the happy couple have decided to make their future home. Mr. Bates expects to return to Caughdeny in a few weeks and the best wishes of the Avalanche and friends at home for himself.

Michigan Mirror

Everybody's Tired of the fight about Michigan's tax climate, but keep blowing. And though many Michigan people are concerned that the state's reputation suffers more than the situation warrants, there seems little that can be done to keep the record accurate, once the battle begins.

Latest outbreak started when William C. Newberry, executive vice president of Chrysler Corp., stated that his company no longer could say what plants it would keep in Detroit or even in Michigan. He added, "Chrysler's future here is going to be determined in part by the kind of business climate that metropolitan Detroit and the state of Michigan provide."

There was immediate reaction from city officials; both Detroit and Hamtramck, and many other officials as well. Early everyone agrees that the state's tax structure needs an overhaul, and everyone was anxious that Chrysler not leave its present location.

Fingers were pointed at the city tax program, by city officials, who were quick to argue that in reality they are very fair to industry. Legislators showed marked interest in Chrysler's comments and most agreed that something ought to be done to attract Chrysler as well as industry as a whole, satisfied.

If anything productive comes of the renewed furor, it will be a welcome event in the lives of industry, legislators and John Q. Public.

Michigan's Natural Resources help overcome some of the bad publicity about economic climate. For example, a nearly unlimited supply of limestone, readily available land, and water transportation, a stable labor force and community acceptance were listed as major factors responsible for a $25,000,000 industry just located here.

The newcomer is the Dundee Cement Co., whose modern cement plant is preparing for start-up operations on a site several miles north of Dundee, a small southeastern Michigan town. In 1975, on route 23 about 15 miles from Monroe. The firm checked several areas carefully before making a decision about location. During this search, the Michigan Economic Development Department prepared four separate reports to encourage them.

The new Michigan industry will market its product throughout the Great Lakes area. Robert E. Martin, Dundee's vice president and general manager, is confident the Big D insignia will become a familiar trademark throughout Michigan and neighboring states.

"Our survey shows a large potential market in the Great Lakes area," Martin reports. "An expanding population, increased production and stepped-up roadbuilding programs will require more and more cement — and Dundee will be prepared to supply it."

Dundee Cement has made it a policy to employ local people wherever possible. Except for a few top officials, almost every member of Dundee's staff comes from the nearby area.

Most Dundee employees had never been in a cement plant before they were hired. The company selected promising men, sent them to Canada for extensive training and brought them back to Dundee to run the new plant.

Dundee's two kilns, in which limestone and other materials are combined to produce cement, are the largest in the Western Hemisphere.

Smoke and dust will be practically eliminated by electrostatic precipitators and dust collector equipment. The installation is so efficient that only a small trail of white vapor is visible from the top of the 350-foot stack which is a new landmark on the country's side.

In addition to the producing facility, at Dundee, a loading station has been established at Monroe, to handle shipment of cement by barge and lake carrier. A similar distribution station has been built at Detroit and the Calumet River in Chicago.

Formal dedication of the new plant is scheduled for next Spring. A week-long program is planned to focus state and national attention on the plant and on Michigan.

Green Stamps help keep MICHIGAN PRICES DOWN!

Like the ads of local merchants that you see in this newspaper, S&H Green Stamps boost business. At the same time they help keep prices down.

Here is why: When a store sells more, it can sell for less, since bigger volume brings lower costs.

Stores that use S&H Green Stamps must sell competitively. Michigan housewives are expert shoppers. They read the ads. They check and compare prices. And they can't be fooled!

Trading stamps are being saved today by two out of three American families—about 35 million in all. And their use is still growing in this and other States.

For the best values, shop at the stores in your community that give S&H Green Stamps.

Letters To The Editor

To the Robert Strong:

The Babbitts have enjoyed a very comfortable stay at their cottage here in Orlando, Florida. We have wished so many times you could be here. It has been so long since we have seen any snow—just like a summer season. A nice warm day, then a cool one. The sun has shone every day. Our first week in Florida was real hot. Mrs. B. wondered if she would be able to stand the heat. She was happy, really, for the cooler weather.

We have enjoyed all the many letters and cards from the home folks and the news weekly Avalanche. Peter Babbitt has done a very good job by keeping the Avalanche on its way to us. Thanks to all of you.

Our neighbors next door are very friendly. They and the Babbitts have enjoyed exchanging tidbits of food, and the Lake, where the youths race their motor boats and water ski. Gulls come for the bits of food Dan throws on the water. Ducks and geese paddle their ways across the Lake many times a day.

The most depressing part of this state is the fruit on the ground going to waste. Does one not wish they had the power to transport it into all the world for the families starved for a good orange or grapefruit?

If the weather conditions allow, the Babbitts plan to reach home the latter part of March. God willing. Mrs. Babbitt wishes to re-pack her grips and prepare to attend the world-wide General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints held in Independence, Missouri, April 3-10. She among others is attending as a delegate for the Northern Michigan District.

This morning, March 2nd, is like a beautiful June morning—8:30 it starts with 70 degrees and promises to reach 80 degrees.

Our regards to all,

Dan and Leta

Everybody Knew About Wrigley's Gum...

How To Have a Going-Out-Of-Business Sale

A NUMBER of years ago, William Wrigley, the chewing-gum maker and ball-club owner, decided that everyone in America knew about his gum and that there was no further need to advertise it.

So he quit advertising.

He also almost lost the gum business. As well known as his gum was — when he was advertising it — it was quickly forgotten by millions of people. Other gums were being advertised, so people bought them.

Mr. Wrigley got on the stick at once, put his advertising back to work, and saved his business. His son still has it — and profits enough to keep his ball-club going.

WRIGLEY NEVER made the mistake, however, of thinking his advertising was a "favor" to the newspapers, magazines, and other media in which he placed it. He was in the business of making sales, not extending favors. Yet this is an error often made by some retail merchants. They feel that everyone knows they are in business, and their advertising is only a favor to the newspaper.

Actually it is no favor at all — any more than it is a favor when customers buy what advertisers have to sell.

ANY TALK, however, of who gets favored the more, covers up a much more vital fact. The absence of vigorous, continual local advertising does as much to drive people to go off somewhere else to shop as the siren lures of distant merchants.

Advertising — thought-out advertising — is news, and people look for such news where they can find it. Trade always goes to the active merchandiser and the consistent advertiser of genuine values. No "favors" are involved.

THE MERCHANT who thinks everyone knows him too often gets around to advertising only when he has a going-out-of-business sale. It has happened many times.
